Foreword

The development of the mind as well as the body plays an important part in building the characters of Carver High students. There are an unlimited number of opportunities that exist for each student. Students are encouraged to promote their interests through study, athletics, and club activities.

It has been endeavored by the 1969 Yellowjacket Staff to present the many and varied aspects of student life at Carver School. In this volume we have attempted to preserve memories that you may never forget.

Dedication

We the seniors of Carver High School pay tribute and express deep appreciation to Mr. Ethan C. Sherrod. We extend our heartfelt gratitude for the kindness, patience and guidance he has given us and for his wise leadership which he has exemplified during his stay at Carver.

Mr. E.C. Sherrod is one of the most respected and dedicated members of the Carver High Faculty. He is a person who is truly dedicated to the profession of teaching in the highest sense of the word. With appreciation for the wise words, and understanding you have given us, the Senior Class salute you.

That Fighting Spirit

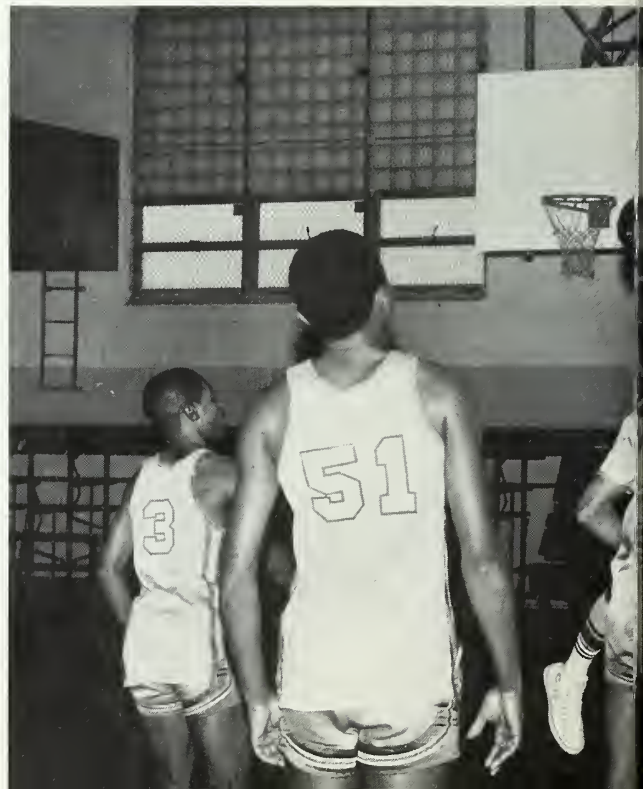

Performances before each game by Drum Major and Majorettes inspire us to victory.

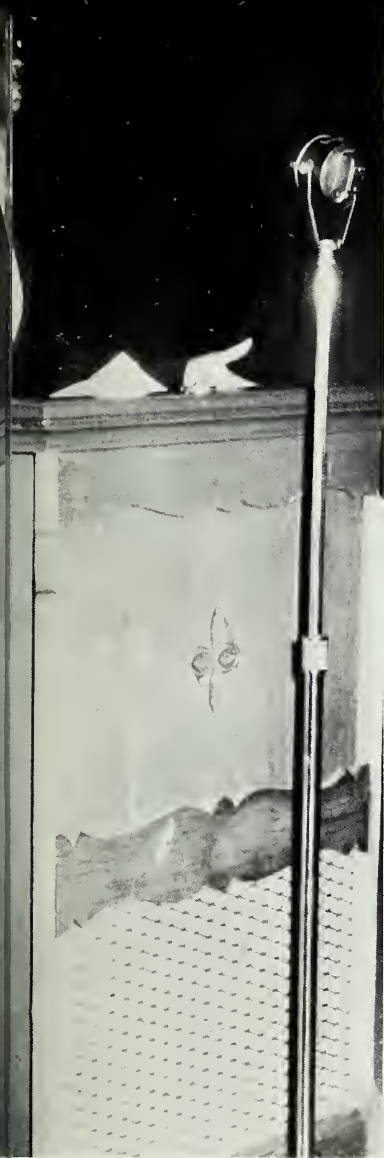

Head cheer leader gets attention of loyal Yellow Jackets.

Ronald Hayden, president of student body, stresses school spirit during assembly.

Hauser shows his amazing basketball ability when he instinctively goes up for a layup.

Senior cheerleaders exhibit that fighting spirit.

The day after a victory Captain Fulton gets a hug.

The teaching process is not only one of dispensing knowledge, but demands understanding, guidance and leadership abilities.

Only those men and women dedicated to their teaching profession possess a love for knowledge and a sincere hope of passing this knowledge on their students.

Carver High School's student body should be proud of their competent administration.

It is with this thought that the Yellowjacket Staff introduces the ADMINISTRATION of Carver Junior and Senior High School.

In every class, the students are introduced to the different facets of adult life. They are encountered with the opportunities and responsibilities of our present society. The primary necessity for becoming a capable citizen is to decide things for yourself rather than blind acceptance. Surrounded by peers of diversified attitudes and abilities, each pupil must decide for himself what course in life he will take.

One's mental development is measured by his status as a sophomore, junior or senior. Graduation from Carver Junior and Senior High School is the summit of the uppermost point of life.

Senior Class of 1969

It is difficult for a senior to tell what it is and what it means to be a senior. It has been a magic and often a trying year. Prospect, reluctance, relief, each was a part of this special year which may never be recovered. The class rings, the prom, the senior assemblies, homecoming festivities and finally commencement exercises are only a few of the major events of the year.

What senior can forget the rush to finish term papers, the dismay of losing during football season, the victorious basketball games, and the dreaded semester exams?

The Class of 1969 is one of the most outstanding ever to graduate from Carver. It has been a successful year and one which we will never forget.

Class Song

We hate to leave you dear old Carver High,
You've guided us down through the years gone by
Although we must go, we'll leave with thee
The best of all the things that are to be.

All sorrows, fears, and woes, we'll leave behind
And wish for truths and joys of all mankind
This is our farewell you see,
Though we hate for this to be
We'll always keep the memory of Carver High.

Class Poem

As we leave these hallowed walls
And journey to go our ways,
We'll always stop and think about
Our dear ole Carver days.

We leave behind the memories
That have carved their faces here,
Never to return again
To such a place so dear.

The faculty and parents we salute
Who've motivated us thus far,
They each lent a helping hand,
They were each a guiding star.

By making us the youth of today
Tomorrow's leaders we'll be;
So many thanks to Dear Ole Carver
Farewell, farewell to thee.

Class Flower

Blue Carnation

We, the Graduating Class of 1969, think it wise to leave something to those who in the future will undertake the task of filling our places.

In the course of our high school careers, naturally, we have acquired various and valuable possessions, among them being a vast store of knowledge that will help us through our lives. Realizing that the underclassmen, especially the juniors would be handicapped if we took all our valuable assets, we have decided to leave to the school some of our most prized possessions.

In distributing our gifts, we have to be fair as well as generous. We sincerely hope that those who receive them will accept them as sacred tokens throughout the coming years.

We hereby give these possessions to certain designated persons whose names shall be recorded herein:

- Atwater, Melvin: wills his ability to be slick and get away with it to Vincent Westmoreland and Kenneth Woods, his ability to talk to girls to James Hamm and his locker in the shower room to Kenneth Jarrett.
- Austin, Jacqueline: wills her appreciation to the teachers, and her uninterrupted love to Reginald Smoot and her typewriter to Linda Jones and her wittiness to John Jowers.

The activities enable the student to enrich his personality and knowledge. In the atmosphere of extracurricular organization, many relationships develop which are not possible in the classroom. Members get to know each other better. Students work and learn together. Sponsors and students become friends. Every student needs the experience of cooperative creativity which clubs provide.

Classes are the chief element of the atmosphere of Carver High School. Because of varying capabilities and personalities, each class offers new opportunities. During each learning experience, students gather facts and methods which help them to assume positions of adult responsibility.

Nothing at Carver High has ever stimulated such school spirit as did 68-69 SPORTS. Only a big game provides the motivation for the entire school, student and faculty alike, to experience true unity.

A salute to our team: basketball, football, tennis, track, volleyball; to our cheerleaders; to the biggest team of all—our student body.
